Section B – Leadership Experiences (2 page Maximum) (140 points Total)

You will use leadership skills in many ways the rest of your life. On a separate sheet of paper, write one paragraph on each of the seven leadership life skills: understanding self, communicating, getting along with others, learning to learn, making decisions, managing resources and working with groups. (Seven paragraphs not to total more than two pages.) Relate these skills to the leadership roles you have held during the past year such as holding an office, on a committee, participation in a project. Include your experiences both in 4-H and outside 4-H.

Understanding Self

Why does it help you as a leader when you better understand who you are? Developing leadership relies heavily on inner strengths of the leader. You and those you are helping to learn leadership skills need to feel confident and self-assured in order to effectively lead others.

You need to know what is important to you because it will influence most of the decisions you make. Research shows that being able to identify your values and clearly define their importance is essential for your mental health. As you reflect on your 4-H experience, think about how 4-H may have helped you identify a fear and overcome a fear (like being in charge of a recognition banquet, co-chairing some special event, public speaking or speaking in front of a large group). Or think about how your experience, such as being a leader's assistant, helped you understand family values. What were those values and how did the experiences shape them?

Communicating

Most people think that speaking before groups is an important leadership role. You have learned already that many other communication skills are just as important in leading groups.

The best leaders are excellent listeners, careful observers of nonverbal communication, skilled in conversing informally in small groups and on the phone, able to obtain feedback from others, and skilled at writing. 4-H activities encourage communication. Describe your skills. Give specific examples, such as how listening changed your actions, or how nonverbal feedback encouraged you to ask more questions.

Getting Along with Others

Understanding and appreciating the people you meet is vital to success in leading groups. As a leader, you will need to gain the trust and support of the individuals in the group. Skills in meeting, accepting, caring, and trusting are basic to building teamwork. Your work in 4-H has provided skills to help groups get along. Describe how you have used your skills to build a team attitude.

Learning to Learn

Helping people make changes is what leadership is all about. Learning to learn is learning how to make desired changes. You make changes in attitude in the way you do things, and in the information you know. The things you know are applied in new and creative ways.

What are some ways you learn new things? Do you learn better in groups or by yourself? Can you learn with games and songs? Do you see that youth of differing ages have differing abilities to learn?

Making Decisions

Decision making is a life skill that you will use everyday. Helping groups make decisions requires you to help them work through the decision making process whenever a decision needs to be made. In a group, members work together to define the problem, gather information about it, list alternative solutions to the problem, weigh the consequences of each solution, decide on the best action to take, follow through with the action, and then evaluate the results of the action taken. In making individual decisions, the same process is used.

Give specific examples of some decisions you have made in 4-H, the process you used to reach your decision, and the results. In addition, describe what you learned throughout the decision making process.

Managing Resources

As you work with larger groups, management skills become more crucial. To help groups use the resources available to achieve goals, careful planning is required to identify. This involves identifying resources (time, things, people or money) and using those resources effectively.

Identify ways you have managed resources effectively and relate those experiences to planning. What goals did you set? What resources or help did you need to reach your goals? How positive were the feeling you had when you were finished? What did you learn from this experience?

Working with Others

In your experiences in 4-H, you have had opportunities to examine how groups work. You have explored how the leader's behavior influences the group's behavior through analyzing and exploring leadership styles and learning when to use them. (Example: autocratic, democratic, laissez-faire)

You have learned how to create good group environments by focusing on group members' needs and motivations. You have developed your skills in helping people work together cooperatively and in making decisions through consensus. These are tough skills to learn, but the results are rewarding.

As you think about a specific activity where you were a leader, describe how you have worked with others. What made the experience a challenge – the people, personalities, differences in interests or skills, size of the group, number or size of the tasks, special conditions in the group or outside environment? What kind of things did you do with a group to help set goals, develop budgets, divide labor and delegate responsibilities?

C2. Citizenship (1/2 page maximum) 30 points

Citizenship is an important part of the 4-H program. It can be described as who or what we are, as what we believe, or as what we do. On a separate sheet of paper, write a narrative of your citizenship experiences. (Include both your 4-H and outside 4-H experience)

Identify ways you have participated in citizenship experiences and describe what you learned about your community, school or country, as well as about yourself, in the process. Experiences may include, but are not limited to, volunteering on election day, participation on local extension councils, attending local government days, job shadowing a government official, participating in Citizenship Youth Forum, writing a letter to the editor of the local newspaper, voting and voicing your opinion at club meetings or learning about other cultures such as attending the Kansas City Global Conference.

C3. Community Service (1/2 page maximum) 30 points

Community service is what you do as an individual or with others to help the community. On a separate sheet of paper, write a narrative of your community service experiences. (Include both your 4-H and outside 4-H experience). Identify community service projects and activities in which you have involved, describe your level of involvement and what you learned through the experience.

List 3 events or opportunities associated with your most significant 4-H projects and activities in other youth organizations.

Year	Activity/Event	Highest level of participation (put an X in one box per activity/event.) (#) indicates points per level
		Local (2 pts)	County (3 pts)	Region (4 pts)	State (5 pts)	National (5 pts)

D2 Project and Activity Learning Experiences 100 Points (1 page maximum)

On a separate sheet of paper, describe experiences associated with your most significant 4-H projects and activities. Only include the last three years maximum. Describe what you learned and how you used that knowledge. What activities did you do and how much time and money did you spend? Hint: Your project record sheet provides valuable summary data to help you write your narrative. Describe how you have used problem solving, responsibility, practiced good sportsmanship and possible careers related to these projects and activities you may have interests in pursuing and how these experiences are going to help you in the future and what that means to your community, country, and world.

Section E. 4-H Story (1 page maximum) (100 points Total)

Up to this point on the application, you have gone back in time for up to, but no more than three years and have given examples that help us “see” a picture of your leadership experiences. You have also described citizenship and community service and explained how that affects your perspective. You have described your project work and the skills it taught you.

Now for the “icing on the cake.” On a separate sheet of paper in a creative story format, tell how you are applying 4-H experiences and lessons to make a difference in your life, and how it has changed you as an individual. Also, list your future goals.

Your 4-H story should add warmth and depth to you as a person with your own values and attitudes. It is a creative way to express who you are to others. It also captures how 4-H has made an impact on your life.

Section F – Photographs (25 points)

Limit three pages (two photos per page, one side only).

- 1) Include color or black & white photos that show things you have done or made in the project(s) listed in Section D.
- 2) Write a short sentence beneath each photo to explain what is happening in the photo (maximum 20 words).
- 3) Photos may be mounted on any kind of paper.

Section G – Resume and References (75 points)

Resume (1 page maximum) and References (1 page maximum) (2 pages total)

The experience of preparing a resume is part of this application process. A resume is required for any part or fulltime job you apply for in the future. The importance of a resume cannot be overemphasized. A resume and references will be required before you are considered for an interview by a potential employer. Your resume will be used with this process to give you a feel for the importance of a resume and to be used in your interview.

The Resume and Reference pages are samples for you to use to design your own documents. Your resume and reference pages do not need to be exactly like the samples provided in this packet.

Please insert your Missouri 4-H Recognition Form in some kind of folder or binder to protect it. Please also include an extra copy of your application; the extra copy does not need to be in a binder.
