

There is a lot at stake when making hay and many things to consider to make it worth your while and profitable. For the price of one bale of hay, this program will give you the fundamental knowledge to achieve those goals. This six hour, non-credit course will thoroughly cover all aspects of hay production and will address the following questions:

- What kinds of forages are best used for hay in Southwest Missouri?
- What should I consider for my hay to meet the nutritional requirements of my livestock?
- What can I supplement my hay with to make it better?
- How do I interpret a hay test?
- Can I afford to fertilize hay fields?
- How do I effectively cut, rake, ted and bale hay?
- What does it take to make good balage?
- Is making my own hay and balage economical for my farming operation?
- How can I reduce losses when storing and feeding hay?

Course Objectives:

The course is specifically designed for livestock and horse producers who may already have their own hay equipment or have custom hay harvested on their land.
