

Wicky Graham Sleight grew up on a farm in Carroll County, Missouri. Her parents received a Certificate of Award for Balanced Farming from the Missouri Bankers Association in cooperation with the Agricultural Extension Service of the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri in February of 1947.

Sleight graduated from the University of Missouri in 1964 with a major in public speaking. In 1969, she received a Master's in Library Science from Mizzou.

She has worked in schools, academics, as well as special and public libraries, most recently retiring as Director of the Marshall Public Library.

She has served as President of the Missouri Library Association, President of the Missouri Center for the Book, and Treasurer for the Missouri Humanities Council. The Council awarded her a Governor's Humanities Award for Excellence in Public Involvement.

Her interests are specifically fund-raising, grant writing, and programming—all of which she hopes to bring to her role on the St. Louis County University of Missouri Extension Council.
