Fresh Produce

C-Highway Produce Auction
facility near Seymour was built in 2008 for the purpose of selling produce, providing a market for interested growers along with a source of fresh produce. Perishable crops will be picked just hours before the sale.

The auction is directed to wholesale buyers, such as stores, roadside stands, farm markets, etc. But anyone that can use produce in boxes or flats lots for canning, freezing, etc., is welcome to buy. There are always some small lots.

The idea of selling produce at auction was formed by several local growers who realized a need for a central point for growers and buyers to gather. Also, they had observed the huge success of similar auctions among the Mennonite and Amish communities.
