

Soil test K map

Why a 'cushion' in soil test target value?

- High variability in soil test K within fields
- If the target value is right where response occurs, some areas will lose yield if an application is missed
- Inflated target soil test level protects full yield in low test areas
- Can precision P & K protect yield in low-test areas more cheaply?

