LISTEN TO YOUR BODY

We often eat for reasons other than hunger. Be mindful of letting other things determine when and how much you eat.

Being mindful means:

- •Fully focusing on what you are doing
- Listening to your body
 when it says you are hungry
- •Being aware of each bite you take so you can recognize when you are full

Stay mindful while eating.

- Avoid distractions like the TV or your phone.
- Pay attention to the way food smells, looks, feels and tastes.
- •Eat slowly to enjoy your food and to allow time to feel the sensation of becoming full.
- Put your fork or spoon down between bites.

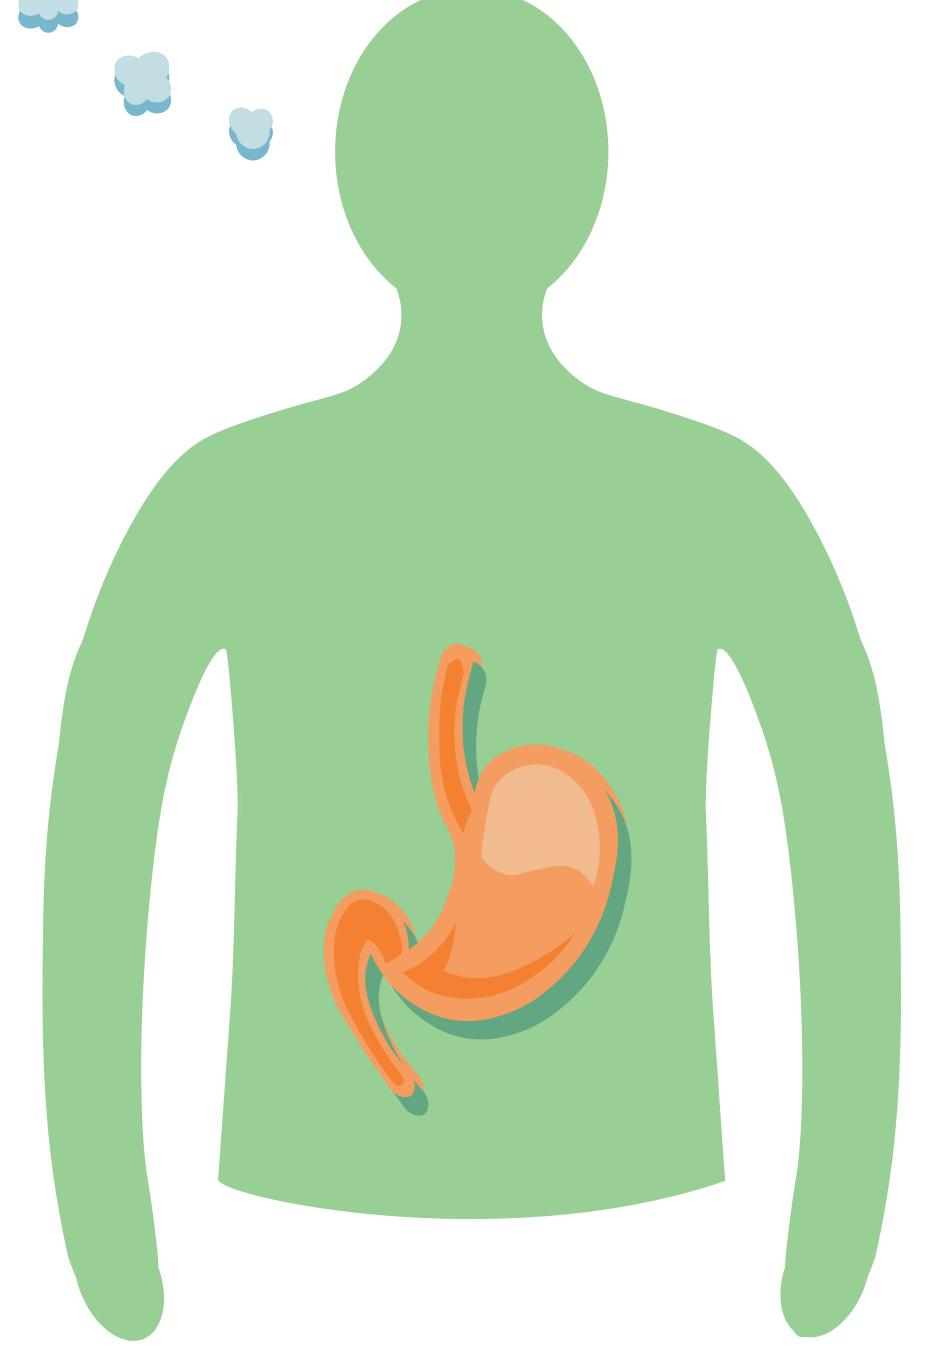

Reasons you may eat when you are not hungry:

- Being around others who are eating
- To avoid wasting food
- Seeing or smelling food
- Time of day
- Stress or boredom
- Habit

Start with smaller portions. The more food we have on our plate, the more we will eat.

- Stomach growling
- Feeling lightheaded or faint
- Trouble focusing on a task
- Stomachache or headache
- Irritability or "hanger"
